URGES PASSAGE OF ENABLING ACT

Convention Adjourns After Harmonious Meeting-Heated Debate Between Cannon and Johnson as to Temperance Campaign in Higher Institutions of Learning.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Roanoke, Va., February 20 .- The twelfth annual convention of the Virginia Anti-Saloon League, which has been in session here for three days, adjourned to-night at 10 'o'clock, thus ending the most harmonious meeting in the history of the organization. The convention adjourned with the avowed intention of securing the passage of work, and Mr. Johnston thought it was of such importance that it should be handled by a special committee. Mr. Johnston's amendment, embodying his views, was tabled, and Mr. Cannon's resolution was adopted.

D. H. Barger, one of the late speakers at the seasion, roundly criticized the old combination between railroads and liquor interests in North Carolina, mentioning Colonel A. B. Andrews, a vice-president of the Southern Railway, as having once carried the "Tarheel" State in his vest pocket. Mr. Barger said he would leave his hearers to decide if any similar conditions confronted them in Virginia.

Treasurer S. P. Jones, of the league, then read his report of financial affairs, and is was adopted unanimously. A summary of Mr. Jones's report follows:

From the best sources, it was learned that the folloying is the truth-about Mr. Morgan's health:

On the Journey from New York, Mr. Morgan suffered from indigestion, which he hoped would disappear with the warmth of Upper Egypt, but the weather there was bad and Mr. Morgan had a slight chill. In the private steamer in which he traveled was Dr. Tribe, of Cairo, who, in the absence of Mr. Morgan's doctor, accompanied the Cairo, who, in the absence of Mr. Morgan's doctor, accompanied the party, chiefly to attend Miss Hamilton, Mr. Morgan's granddaughter, who was suffering from an affection of the car. Mr. Morgan, who had intended to go to Sudan, seeing that the chill was no better, and that his indigestion was not disappearing, put himself in the hands of Dr. Tribe and abandoned his proposed journey to Sudan. He returned to Cairo on a special train last Saturday in order to have the comfort of his special suite of rooms in Shepherd's Hotel.
